I have a suggestion regarding the behavior of practice time. I use the 3 minute setting in stagger mode with practice. The race manager will announce each driver's finishing(goal) time as they cross the finish line. This is a very nice feature. Drivers who stop practicing in the middle of the 3-minute period will have their goal time announced at the time of the timeout. If possible, I think there is no need to announce the goal due to a timeout.

Goal time announcements have priority over other announcements such as LAP time reading. Thereby the currently practicing driver's LAP time will be skipped by the "timed out" Goal time
